Formerly Quoted at

Crown Jewels are always the finest in the realm. The famous Koh-I-Nor diamond now graces the crown of England's queen, and many other famous gems have found a permanent home in a royal crown.

Just as the lapidarian chooses with infinite pains the most perfect jewels for a crown, so I have selected for my "Royal 70" the most perfect gems of the Iris world. I have grown and tested every worthwhile variety that has appeared in the last quarter century, several thousand in all, and I do not hesitate to recommend this collection as one that is fit to grace the gardens of Royalty. The seventy varieties below represent those which have survived every test. They are "The Crown Jewels of Irisdom".

The World's Finest Oriental Poppies

In ancient times the Oriental Poppy was dedicated to the Goddess Ceres, who, holding a lighted torch in one hand and a Poppy blossom in the other, was said to keep watch over and carefully guard their fields and crops. Nothing is more showy or more durable in the garden than these new modern hybrid Oriental Poppies, but to be sure of getting the finest stock one must procure plants that are grown from root divisions of the original hybrid, and not seed grown plants. All plants offered by me are strong field grown plants from authentic root divisions of the original hybrid. Once planted they will grow more beautiful with each succeeding year.

While many seed grown poppies are sold, it is a fact that many of the finest hybrids never produce seeds and those that do never come true from seeds. Seed grown poppies are always inferior and untrue to name; therefore, I do not sell any seed grown plants.

Nothing is easier to grow than these gorgeous Oriental Poppies. The secret of success is planting them at the proper time. Spring plantings are usually doomed to failure but they may be safely planted after they become dormant from July until early Fall. It is best to place your order at once, while you have it in mind, and I will send them at just the right time for best results.

This collection of the "World's Finest Oriental Poppies" leaves nothing to be desired. Most of the varieties listed are very rare. Planted either singly or in small groups or masses, they add a touch of barbaric splendour to any garden and never fail to arouse the admiration of all who see them.
